Parts of Speech

1. Nouns: words that name a person, place, thing, or idea (teacher – freedom – wall)
2. Pronouns: words used in place of a noun to avoid repetition (I – he – them – his)
3. Verbs: words that express an action or a state of being (run – do – be – seem – like)
4. Adjectives: words that describe or modify a noun or pronoun (red – tall – interesting)
5. Adverbs: words that modify a verb, adjective, or another adverb. They often tell how, when, where, or to what extent (early – there – very – quickly – always)
6. Articles: a – an – the
7. Prepositions: words that are used before a noun, pronoun, or gerund to show place, time, or direction in a sentence (in – on – at)
8. Interjection: a word or short phrase that shows strong feelings or emotions, such as surprise, joy, pain, or excitement. (Oh! – Yay!)

Directions: Fill in the table with parts of speech from the given passage.

Wow! The young girl quickly ran across the park because she saw a beautiful butterfly with colorful wings. She was so happy that she laughed loudly and tried to follow it. The butterfly flew over the bright flowers, circled a tall tree, and finally landed on a green leaf. Her brother watched from the bench and smiled as he clapped his hands. Soon, they both sat together and enjoyed the warm sunshine while listening to the birds sing.

Sentence Structure

A sentence expresses a complete thought. A fragment does not express a complete thought.

Ex:	Fragment	the mayor and his family
	Sentence	The mayor and his family joined the conference yesterday.

- Sentences begin with a capital letter and end with an end mark.
- A statement ends with a period.

Ex: The weather is nice today!

- A command ends with a period or an exclamation point.

Ex: Add Cheese to the salad.

- A question ends with a question mark.

Ex: Where shall we travel tomorrow?

- An exclamation ends with an exclamation point.

Ex: What a lovely dress!

- An exclamation point can set off an interjection—a word that expresses strong emotion.

Ex: Wow! She's really talented!

Bravo! You did a great job!

A complete thought needs both a subject and a predicate.

Ex:	Subject	the mayor and his family
	Predicate	joined the conference yesterday
	Sentence	The mayor and his family joined the conference yesterday.

A sentence that does not have both a subject and a predicate is incomplete. It is a sentence fragment.

Compound Sentences

- A compound sentence is made of two simple sentences that have been combined with a comma and a coordinating conjunction or a semicolon.
- The coordinating conjunctions are FANBOYS; for – and – nor – but – or – yet – so.
  Ex.: I baked a cake, but it tasted horrible. (The second sentence shows contrast)
- FANBOYS join two independent clauses.
- A semicolon is used to separate two parts of a compound sentence not separated by a conjunction and gives more details about the first sentence.
  Ex.: I fixed the car; it wasn't working properly. (The second sentence gives more details about the first one)

A. Directions: Combine each pair of sentences using a conjunction or a semicolon.

1. Mia practiced the piano every day. She performed confidently at the concert.

2. I packed my swimsuit. The pool was closed.

_____

3. You can finish your homework now. You can do it after dinner.

_____

5. The bell rang. The students hurried to their classrooms.

_____

6. Jake wanted to ride his bike. His tire was flat.

_____

7. Sarah enjoys painting. Her brother prefers photography.

A clause is a group of words with a subject and a verb.

An independent clause forms a complete thought and can be a sentence.

A dependent clause is not a complete thought and cannot stand as a sentence.

A subordinating conjunction connects a dependent and independent clause. Words such as after, although, as, because, until, when, and while are subordinating conjunctions.

Ex:	Dependent Clause	when he woke up
	Independent Clause	He got dressed and went to the office.

A complex sentence is an independent clause and one or more dependent clauses.

Ex: When he woke up, he got dressed and went to the office.

B. Directions: Each exercise begins with a sentence that, when joined with the correct answer choice, will result in a complex sentence. Circle the letter of your answer.

Hint: The correct answer will be a clause.

   a. who talks to an invisible rabbit.
   b. and his family in Argentina.
   c. named Jim.

4. The actors in the play put on a great show

a. at every performance.

b. for the audience.

c. because they rehearse so often.

5. I would like to act in a local production

a. someday in the future.

b. when I am older.

c. at the theater.

A run-on sentence results when two main or independent clauses are joined with no punctuation or coordinating conjunction.

The use of a comma in a run-on sentence that has two main clauses is called a comma splice.

To correct a comma splice, add a suitable conjunction after the comma, or replace the comma with a period and create two sentences.

Ex:	Run-on Sentence	The blue jay is one of the many birds native to North America it is a member of the crow family.
	Correction	The blue jay is one of the many birds native to North America. It is a member of the crow family.
	Comma Splice	Blue jays are protective of their nests, they can be aggressive toward humans who come too close.
	Correction	Blue jays are protective of their nests. They can be aggressive toward humans who come too close.

Last Saturday, my family went to the beach, we had a picnic by the sea. Because the weather was warm. I packed my bag and my sister brought the towels we forgot the sunscreen. While we were building a sandcastle. The waves were high, they splashed over our feet, everyone laughed. Although my little brother was tired. We stayed until sunset because we wanted to watch the beautiful sky.

How to Vary Sentence Beginnings?

Varying sentence beginnings is the technique of opening sentences in different ways rather than always starting with the subject.

Writers can begin with an adverbial phrase, an adjective phrase, a prepositional phrase, and a gerund phrase to create variety and improve sentence fluency.

Examples:

1. Adverbial Phrase: Without hesitation, the firefighter entered the building.
2. Adjective Phrase: Exhausted after the marathon, Maya collapsed into the sofa.
3. Prepositional Phrase: At the edge of the forest, a cabin stood quietly.
4. Gerund Phrase: Practicing the Piano every day, Leo improved rapidly.

G. Directions: Rewrite each sentence so that it begins with the type of phrase in brackets.

1. The hikers reached the shelter before the storm. (Prepositional Phrase)

2. Olivia completed the puzzle quickly. (Adverb)

_____

3. The students presented their projects confidently after weeks of preparation. (Adverb)

_____

4. Adam became an excellent swimmer because he practiced daily. (Gerund Phrase)

_____

5. The children searched for seashells along the beach at sunrise. (Prepositional Phrase)

_____

6. Mya was able to improve her vocabulary by reading for thirty minutes each evening. (Gerund Phrase)

_____

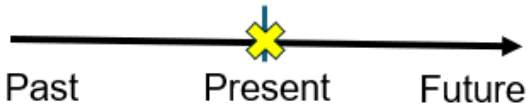

7. The team practiced late into the night because they were eager to impress the judges. (Adjective Phrase)

Lesson 7: If Conditional Type 2- Refer to p. 12-13

Use:

The second conditional is used to talk about something that is unreal, unlikely to happen, or imaginary situations in the present or future. It's like dreaming, imagining, or wishing.

Keywords: if, unless

Form:

- It consists of the condition clause and the result clause.

  If + past simple , would + infinitive

  Ex: If I had wings, I would fly around the world.

- A comma is added at the end of the clause when you start with the condition clause (If clause) Ex.: If I had a million dollars, I would buy a villa.
- If the sentence starts with the result clause, don't add a comma between the two clauses.

  Ex.: I would buy a villa if I had a million dollars.
- N.B.: "Normally, we say 'I was' in everyday sentences, but in if conditional type 2, we use 'were' with all subjects — even 'I' because we're talking about something that isn't real — we're imagining!" Ex.: If I were you, I would focus in class much more.

Lesson 10: Relative Pronouns

- A pronoun takes the place of a noun.
- The pronouns (who, which, that, and whose) are called relative pronouns.

• Who: is used for people	• Whose: is used to replace possessive nouns for people, animals, or things
• Which: is used for things, objects, and animals	• When: is used for time
• That: can be used instead of (who or which)	• Where: is used for place

A clause is a group of words that has a subject and a verb.

It can be a complete sentence or just part of a sentence.

A relative clause begins with a relative pronoun.

Lesson 11: Passive Voice: Present Simple, Past Simple, Future Simple

- In active voice, the sentence has a subject that acts upon its verb.
  Ex.: Someone stole my bike.
- In passive voice, the sentence has a subject that receives the verb's action. It is used when the focus is on the action with irrelevance to who performs it.
  Ex.: My bike is stolen.
- In the example above, the focus is on the fact that the bike was stolen. I don't know who did it, or the person who did it is not important to be mentioned.
  Why use passive voice?
  It is used when creating formal articles or to put more emphasis on the action rather than who did it.

Form:

subject + v. to be + past participle of verb + agent subject + am/is/are/was/were/will be + past participle + agent

When rewriting active sentences in passive voice, note the following:

1. The object of the active verb becomes the subject of the passive verb.
2. Verb form: (V. to be + past participle)
3. The subject of the active sentence becomes the object of the passive sentence, which is called the agent.

Active voice:	Subject	verb	object
	The baker	makes	bread.
Passive Voice:	Bread	is made	by the baker.	(agent)

N.B.:

* The agent is dropped if the person who performs the action is obvious or unknown.

Ex.: He was arrested yesterday. (Agent is obvious: He was arrested by the police.)

* When the interest is in the action itself rather than the person who performs it.

Ex.: The new hospital will be opened tomorrow.

* When the subject in the active sentence is general or a pronoun.

Ex.: Football is played all over the world. (People play football all over the world.)
